

Parachuting is a great way to teach babies about gravity. Contrary to popular belief, terminal velocity indicates that an object has come to a complete stop mid-air and must be escorted back to the ground with a ladder.