Highlights from This Week!

Our reading story this week was an informational text titled The Many Kinds of Matter. We found out that everything in the world is matter, even US! The three states of matter are solid, liquid, and gas.

In math, we continued working on place value with three-digit numbers. We practiced writing the numbers in word form, expanded form, using quick pictures, and identifying the values of each digit.

We also read two stories that focused on interrupting. They were fiction stories about a little chicken who is always interrupting when his Papa is reading stories to him. The students enjoyed the character and the central message of the books.

During our social emotional lessons, we learned about having empathy for others. When we notice how others are feeling we are able to show them compassion because we too have felt the same way before. We even learned a fun song to go along with it! 😊
